LOCATION

Coconut Grove is a neighborhood defined by its rich history, intimate scale, and exuberant landscape of trees, with tangles of roots and thickets of palms that dapple its boutique-lined streets in pleasant shadows. The Four Seasons Private Residences Coconut Grove offers stunning panoramic views of the beautiful Biscayne Bay.

LOCATION

Coconut Grove is the oldest neighborhood in Miami, dating back to the late 1800s. From a lush landscape luring fortune seekers at the turn of the century, to a bohemian haven for artists, intellectuals, and naturalists in the 1960s, this corner of Miami holds its traditions dear yet has evolved into a sophisticated neighborhood favored by international urbanites.

JOURNALIST AND AUTHOR

What sets “the Grove” apart is the sense of living in a small village while being moments away from the buzz of Miami’s cultural, dining, and beach scenes (South Beach is less than 30 minutes away; downtown is practically around the corner). Yet there’s really no need to go anywhere: Coconut Grove has buzzworthy restaurants, cozy cafes, and chic boutiques, not to mention some of the best schools in the region and the most distinctive botanical gardens in the country. Walking its sun-dappled streets, shaded by thickets of palms, or strolling the winding paths bordering Biscayne Bay, one senses the serenity and intimate scale of this very special enclave.

join forces to create an exceptional property in Miami's most desired location, complemented by the prestige of Four Seasons.

ALEJANDRO REYNAL
Four Seasons

Following an international career in global travel and hospitality, business services, and telecommunications, Alejandro Reynal became president and CEO of Four Seasons in 2022. He is responsible for advancing the position of Four Seasons as the world's leading luxury hospitality company and driving its strategic growth into new business areas. With an emphasis on fostering a great culture, where diversity is embraced and employees feel valued, Reynal is focused on exceeding customer expectations through service and innovation while achieving strong results with a clear strategy and disciplined execution.

UGO COLOMBO
CMC Group

Since his arrival in Miami in the '80s, Italian-born Ugo Colombo has played a pivotal role in the reinvention of the city's skyline. With his company, CMC Group, Colombo designed and built a series of luxury high-rises on Brickell Avenue—including the sought-after Bristol Tower, Brickell Flatiron, and Santa Maria—that raised the standards for high-end condominiums in South Florida. He also played a role in the rejuvenation of Miami Beach's famed Ocean Drive by redeveloping two important Art Deco hotels: Waldorf Towers and the Casa Grande.

NADIM ASHI
Fort Partners

When he founded Fort Partners in 2012, Nadim Ashi had a long trajectory as an entrepreneur and investor: he had built and sold a successful tech company and was CEO of an investment advisory firm. Fort Partners' first project, Four Seasons Hotel and Private Residences at The Surf Club, was the start of a solid partnership with the esteemed Four Seasons brand. Over the past 12 years, his extraordinary vision and impeccable execution has led him to expand substantially, making him a leader in the global luxury real estate and hospitality markets. Ashi now holds ownership of all Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts on the coast of Florida and is working on 14 important projects in Europe and on the East and West Coasts of the United States.

MICHELE BÖNAN
Michele Bönan Interior

Florentine architect and interior designer Michele Bönan brings Italian artistry to each of his projects, be it the formal 16th-century Palazzo Tornabuoni in Tuscany or the J.K. Place hotels from Florence to Paris. He does not adhere to a precise style but rather follows the Latin concept of genius loci, looking to the distinctive spirit of a place for inspiration. His designs around the world are characterized by Tuscan tailoring and high craftsmanship, with each detail bearing the stamp of excellence.

PETER WIRTZ
Wirtz International

Together with his brother Martin, landscape architect Peter Wirtz heads the esteemed Antwerp-based studio Wirtz International, which was founded by their father in the 1950s. The studio has conceived some of the most famous contemporary public gardens in the world, including the Carrousel Garden at the Louvre in Paris and Jubilee Park in London's Canary Wharf, as well as enchanting green spaces in private homes. Though each Wirtz garden is different, they share a lyrical quality and sweeping forms full of character.

LUIS REVUELTA
Revuelta

Revuelta Architecture International has an extensive portfolio in South Florida comprising commercial, hospitality, and residential projects, including highly regarded high-rise condominiums such as Bristol Tower and Santa Maria. Principal Luis Revuelta began his career in 1972 and has been collaborating with Ugo Colombo's CMC Group, among other established developers, for more than three decades. He founded his eponymous studio with a commitment to provide clients with quality designs balanced with sustainable solutions delivered within stringent time schedules.
